

In December 2009, the SEC approved amendments to the custody rule under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 and related forms. The amendments, among other things, require certain registered investment advisers that have custody of client funds or securities to undergo an annual surprise examination by an independent public accountant to verify client funds and securities.

Form ADV-E is used as a cover page for a certificate of accounting of securities and funds of which the investment adviser has custody (surprise exam report). Form ADV-E contains both information about the adviser and the surprise exam conducted.

The surprise exam report is created by an independent public accountant after a surprise inspection of the adviser. The Form ADV-E filing and the surprise examination report or statement filed by the accountant will be made public information and will be available to the public on www.adviserinfo.sec.gov.

Form ADV-E Surprise Examination Filing Process for Public Accountants

Confirmation of Accountant E-mail address

The Form ADV-E Surprise Examination Filing Site is open to accountants after a firm initiates a Form ADV-E filing. Upon initiation of the Form ADV-E filing, the accountant will be sent an email requesting confirmation of the accountant's email address provided by the adviser and that the accountant intends to conduct a surprise exam on the adviser.

Verification of Independent Public Accountant's Email Address

Surprise Examination For:
INVESTMENT ADVISER FIRM
CRD #: 00000

INVESTMENT ADVISER FIRM, LLC. has indicated that your independent public accounting firm will be conducting a surprise examination of client funds and securities in the custody of INVESTMENT ADVISER FIRM, LLC. during calendar year 2010. Please verify that your accounting firm intends to conduct this surprise examination at a time chosen by your accounting firm by confirming your email address on the following site Click here for email verification.

Confirming your email address does not require that the surprise examination report be filed now, but indicates that your accounting firm intends:

1. to conduct a surprise examination during calendar year 2010 in compliance with Investment Advisers Act rule 206(4)-2 or applicable state law;
2. to submit a surprise examination report (certificate of accounting) within 120 days of the time chosen by the accountant for the surprise examination;
3. to submit a statement, if a surprise examination report is not submitted, within four business days of the accounting firm's resignation or dismissal from, or other termination of, the engagement, or removing itself or being removed from consideration for being reappointed.

After confirming your email address, another email will be sent with specific filing instructions and a link to the Investment Adviser Registration Depository (IARD) to submit the surprise examination report or statement.

Upon confirmation of the email address, the accountant will receive a second email containing a unique, secure link to the Form ADV-E Surprise Examination Filing Website along with instructions for uploading a surprise examination report or a termination statement.

Examination Report and Termination Statement File Format

The surprise examination report or termination statement (if required) must be uploaded in a single, text-searchable, Adobe Acrobat (PDF) format.

Please contact FINRA at 240-386-4848 or webiard@finra.org for assistance with conversion of documents to this format if needed.

Submit a Form ADV-E Surprise Examination Report or Statement of Termination

1. Click on the Form ADV-E Surprise Examination Filing Site link contained in the second email.
